The New-York Tribune-Farmer

is a national illustrated agricultural weekly for farmers and their families, and stands at the head of the agricultural press. It is a practical paper for practical farmers, helping them to secure the largest possible profit from the farm through practical methods.

It is entertaining, instructive and practically useful to the farmer's wife, sons and daughters, whose interests it covers in an attractive manner.

The regular price is $1.00 per year, but for a limited time, until May 5, 1903, we will receive your subscription for The New York Tribune Farmer and also for your own favorite local newspaper, The Sentinel.

Both Papers One Year for Only $1.50.

Send your order and money to The Sentinel.

Your name and address on a postal card to The New York Tribune Farmer, New-York City, will bring you free sample copy.

The Champion Husband.

The champion married man and ex-widower is Fritz Kottman, a citizen of Creglingen in the kingdom of Wurtemberg. He has been married 11 times, and he has only just turned 50. Fritz is simply an honest fellow who had hard lines with wives and they, in turn, had the hardest of luck. The entire batch died more or less dramatically. Each one of his first three died after nine months of honeymoon. His two following wives were drowned accidentally. Two more met their deaths in an avalanche. The next one dropped dead at a dance. Her successor committed suicide. The tenth was torn to pieces by a mad bull, and the eleventh, his present wife, has only one arm and one leg, the missing limbs having been carried away by a railroad train.—N. Y. Sun.

Mrs. Lot Was Too Fresh.

A little Danville (Pa.) maiden only four years old and whose first name is Grace, belongs to the infant class in a Sunday school in that place. The teacher had told the children the story of Lot's wife to inculcate a lesson in obedience. Having finished the story, she asked: "Now, then, who can tell me why Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt?" The question was asked several times, the teacher expecting some child to answer that she was punished for disobedience. At last Grace said: "Pleathe. Mth Skimmer, I know." "Well," said the teacher, "you tell us, Gracie." "I think it wath becauth she wath too fresh."

Applying the Lesson.

A little four-year-old boy being taught politeness at meal time was told that he was not to expect to be helped first, and particularly that ladies were always served before gentlemen. Soon after, when it was all being digested in his little mind, he said to his mother, who was undressing him at night:

"Mother, you are going to die first."
"What in the world do you mean by that?" his mother asked.
"You will die before I do."
"And what makes you think I will?"
"Why, you know ladies always before gentlemen."—N. Y. Times.

Advertising Did It.

He didn't have a dollar; he didn't have a dime. His clothes and shoes were looking just as though they'd served their time. He didn't try to kill himself to dodge misfortune's whacks. Instead, he got some ashes and he filled five dozen sacks. Then, next he begged a dollar. In the paper in the morn he advertised in polish that would put the sun to scorn. He kept on advertising, and, just now, suffice to say, he's out in California at his cottage on the bay.—Lyre.

She Had to Surrender.

"I've refused George twice," she said, "but it's no use."
"No use!"
"Not a bit. He believes in predestination."
"What has that to do with it?"
"Why, he thinks I'm predestined to be his wife, and of course, if that is so, I'm simply have to give in, no matter what papa says. He can't expect me to defy fate."—Chicago Post.

Hard on Little Hermann.

Hermann Piefke was "kept in" after school hours for his want of proficiency in mental arithmetic. A note to that effect was given him to take home and bring back the next morning with his father's signature. The father is an honest tin plate worker, a citizen of Pittsburgh, and a strict disciplinarian. Hermann returned the note to his teacher with downcast eyes. It was signed as follows: "Read and walloped. C. Piefke."

Precept and Example.

The small boy seemed to be deeply interested in the picture.
"Pop," he said at last, "when we went rowin' last summer you used to tell me never to stand up in the boat."
"That's right, my son."
"An' you're always tellin' me to take George Washin'ton as a model."
"You could have no better, my son."
"Well, just look at him crossin' the Delaware."—Chicago Post.

An Indication of What Happened.

"Sis is engaged to that feller that calls every night," announced the boy.
"How do you know?" they asked.
"Cause she doesn't powder her face any more when he's coming," answered the observing youngster.—Chicago Post.

Kicked Out.

"Angelica's father? He is an old pirate!" exclaimed George, bitterly.
"Are you justified in saying that?" asked his mother gently.
"Of course I am. I had evidence only last night that he is a free-booter."—Somerville Journal.

An Example at Hand.

"Do you believe in luck?"
"Sometimes. See that fat woman with the red hat over there?"
"Yes."
"Twenty-two years ago she refused to marry me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Men at Washburn.

If a census could be taken of the men who work over a washburn more or less days per week, it would run up into the hundreds of thousands.—Detroit Free Press.

His Reason.

"No," said the person with the shifty eyes, "I do not eat meat any more."
"Does it disagree with you?"
"Not exactly; but the butcher did."—Chicago Tribune.

What They Indicate.

A phrenologist says that the bumps on a married man's head frequently indicate the possession of a strenuous wife.—Chicago Daily News.

A Breakfast Food.

The refined and raised-as-a-pet gentleman from the effete east took his seat at the table of a W. and W. western hotel one pleasant morning and gazed pensively out of the window until some one approached.
"Have you any breakfast food?" he inquired in simple cereal accents.
"Well, I guess yes," responded Roaring Pete, the cowboy waiter. "We got ham and eggs, fried sausage, chuck steak, spare ribs, mutton chops, corned beef hash, hog and hominy, light bread, heavy bread, hot bread, cold bread, corn bread, toast bread, apple butter, peach butter, cow butter, coffee, tea, butter-milk and beer. Breakfast food? Well, that's our winner. Name your grub."—N. Y. Times.

Cat's Love of Fish.

One of the strange things in nature is the fondness of the cat for fish and its fear of water. There is no animal, not even those which prey upon fish and are adapted by nature to catching them, like the otter and muskrat, which is fonder of fish than the ordinary cat. There is no animal which dislikes the water more. State Press has seen a cat which loafed around a live box, where minnows were kept, and which would watch the surface of the water as closely as if watching a mousehole, and if a minnow came to the top it would be quickly slapped out of the water by the paw without even wetting the latter. This is not a fish or cat story, either.—Galveston News.

Couldn't Find Washington.

The grounds of the department of agriculture at Washington are thickly set with beautiful trees, many of which are rare and imported varieties, greatly admired by visitors. But it was neither their beauty nor their rarity which most impressed a recent visitor from Minnesota. A department clerk met him wandering, evidently hopelessly lost, with Pennsylvania avenue only two blocks off. Seeing the clerk, the visitor hailed him in great excitement.
"Say, which way city of Washington? I have been going round trees for hour and half!"—New York Mail and Express.

Alfalfa in California.

It is coming to be recognized that alfalfa is a more reliable profit-maker than fruit in this state, alfalfa having come to be a generic term meaning almost any kind of stock feed. Even wealthy men with good orchards on good ground are turning to alfalfa. A dispatch from Tehama county mentions two men well known to have ample means who are hitching their traction engines to fine peach trees in full bearing and snaking them out by the roots. They will plant alfalfa in their place.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Bicycle in England.

Bicycling is said to be holding its own in England much better than in this country, perhaps partly because the roads are better and the distances smaller, and partly because the English do not tire of a new craze so quickly as Americans. It is said that the demand for new wheels last year was larger than in any previous year since the height of the boom.—Chicago Chronicle.

Sad Case.

"You seem poorly prepared to answer even the simplest question, sir," said the professor, sternly. "Perhaps you cannot even tell me who wrote Caesar's 'Commentaries.'"
"No, sir, I can't," said the student, miserably. "I know the name of the man just as well as I do my own, but it's gone completely out of my mind for the time being."—Youth's companion.

Mastodons in New York.

Sixty mastodons have been found in New York, mostly along certain well-marked belts. Outside these belts the state is barren. They, therefore, had distinct feeding grounds, and that, too, in a not very remote time. They are usually found resting on the boulders of old streams and in a comparatively thin layer of peat.—Science.

Touchy.

"Beg pardon, madam," said the clerk, "but what did you say your name was?"
"I didn't say," snapped the Chicago woman, who had just completed her seventh matrimonial venture, "all you need to know is what my name is."—Philadelphia Press.

Dilemma.

Mistress (sternly)—How is it, Mary, that I never hear a sound in the kitchen when you are entertaining that man?
Mary (archly)—Please, ma'am you see, the poor fellow is that bashful for the present that he does nothing but eat.—Smart Set.

Mutual.

Mother—You have accepted George! Why, you know very well that I don't approve of him.
Daughter—That's all right, mother. Neither does he approve of you.—Stray Stories.

Hard to Decide.

Freddie—What's this box of stuff mamma sent home?
Cobwigger—I don't know, my boy, whether it's a new kind of breakfast food or stuffing for her soft cushions.—N. Y. Times.

Timely Pleasantry.

Mr. Bank-Stock—I wonder how Mr. Railroad-Stock got the typhoid fever?
Mr. Railroad-Stock—I believe he got it from bad water.—Judge.

One of Many.

Bess—Young Callobo is an exceptionally good talker, isn't he?
Nell—Yes, he's a good talker all right enough, but he has an impediment in his thoughts.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Oxygen Is Life.

The Perfected Oxygen King, a safe simple, but scientific system of curing disease by means of Oxygen. The Great Life Giver. Especially adapted to home treatment; cures all curable diseases not requiring surgical or mechanical treatment.

A Drugless System of Healing, no medicines whatever being required, and as the instruments never lose their power.

It is Positive! The Cheapest System On Earth. Every family should have an "Oxygenator" in the home, as it is an all-around family physician, ready to use at a moment's notice, for any and every ailment which is liable to arise.

It is Worth Its Weight in Gold, because in many instances it will save life when all other means fail. It is an absolute specific in nearly the whole range of acute diseases, especially Pneumonia, LaGrippe, and all inflammatory conditions, Typhoid fever, Marial, Billious, etc.

In chronic diseases of all kinds, it is the Most Effective Treatment Known, and so simple that a child can use it successfully in all minor ailments. Every intelligent person, and especially those in poor health should investigate The Oxygenator System of Treatment, and learn that it is possible to Cure Yourself in Your own Home Without Loss of Time or the slightest inconvenience, and then have the instrument left to cure others. It imparts Energy, Vitality, Vigor and Vim to the weak and broken in health, no matter what the cause. It Will Free You From Aches and Pains and Make Life Worth Living.

Read the following statement from well known and prominent people in your own county, St. Joseph and surrounding territory, then govern yourselves accordingly.

"We, the undersigned, have been using 'Oxygenator' in our families for some time past, with most satisfactory results. We have no hesitation in strongly endorsing the merits of this instrument, and have no reason to doubt that it will accomplish all claimed by the proprietors when rightly used."

Above list could be extended almost indefinitely if space allowed. However, if you are still skeptical, Read the Following Statement From One of the Most Prominent Physicians in the West.

The Perfected Oxygen King is all O. K. Has my daily endorsement as a physician and surgeon of both schools, Regular and Homoeopathic. I am sure I speak within truthful bounds in stating that I have twice saved the life of my wife in Pneumonia, within two consecutive years. It has also cured me of a case of chronic rheumatism of long standing, that no medicine would reach in palliative manner."

Signed—Charles H. St. John, M. D., D. D., Salina, Kan. Former professor of children's diseases, College of Homoeopathic Medicine and Surgery, Kansas City University.
